“ Tammi, children, family, and friends. Regrettably, I cannot make it to Barry’s service. Needless to say, with Barry’s passing, life has revealed how, at times, it has a cruel way of reminding me of its fragility. I wanted to share a few thoughts. Although I have been away and out of touch for many years, I think of the bond shared with Barry, teammates, and friends during our high school years. I have so many that I have reflected upon over the last day and hours. From the time we went on a road trip to see a golf tournament in Memphis to the time I heard the defensive lineman on whoever we were playing say “did you see the arms on the quarterback?” I knew at that moment; we had the upper hand in that game. For two years, I centered the football on every one of Barry’s punts. Probably 50% of those should have been fumbled or sailed over his head. Never one miss on those. Barry, being the consummate teammate and athlete, made it look easy. He never said one word about a bad snap. I remember catching for him when he was pitching and having to use the extra padding in the mitt. What a pure example of a natural athlete. During my times away in some crazy places and situations, I thought about those games, practices, and times with Barry. Tammi, when I look at the pictures posted on the memoriam, it is abundantly clear that Barry’s greatest gift was his family and the love so very obvious with you, him, and your family.

God Bless,
