“ I’ll never forget the time I had left my car at Jan’s and Paul and I were off somewhere. It came a torrential downpour for about 20 minutes while we were gone. Creig went out in the rain and covered my open windows so my car and it’s contents wouldn’t get soaked. And got himself soaked in the process. It wasn’t just a good deed, but a token of the kind of person that he was. A vast majority wouldn’t have gotten wet for someone else’s mistake. And most of the rest would have made a half ass attempt just so they could get credit for it. He not only did it, he took the time to do it right further soaking himself. I always had a different prospective towards him from that day on. He earned my respect that day. You will be missed my friend.
