“ Gary and I were great friends during our high school years and a few years after. I have many great memories of things that Gary and I did together. These include going to Mardi Gras in New Orleans, and climbing a hill outside El Paso and coming across a mountain lion.

I remember one time we got thrown out of a high school class, and the dean sent us to the library. We managed to find some shonky "history" books with a bunch of risque limericks and drinking songs. We went back to class, sang a few of these to the class, and got thrown out again.

Gary was the quiet one of the pair of us, but had a wicked sense of humour.

RIP old buddy. See you on the other side.
