“ I met Julian when I worked at the BP Service Station. We became pretty close. He was such a sweetheart. Me and a couple of my friends would visit often; talking, laughing, him showing us his latest project, his stool with all the words, names, etc. we would watch South Park and he would play his guitar and sing to us. My absolute favorite was Fire by U2. No matter how many times I asked him he would play it for me. I never tired of hearing it and it just made me feel something inside. Back then we didn't have cell phones. I was thinking of him today and thought maybe if I reached out he would play it for me and I could record it so I could hear it again any time I liked. I thought how great it would be to talk to him and laugh like we used to and find out all about his life since we lost touch. Needless to say I was heartbroken when I saw this. He had such a kind heart and truly loved his family. We would talk about them often especially his grandmother. My condolences go out to his family and I want you to know that he made a lasting impression in my life and after 27 years I still think of him. I'm sorry I waited too late to try and reconnect.

“ Julian have had a few bumps and bruises but was a great person that would do anything for someone when I was hanging out with him in our high school days. RIP Julian and hopefully you can sit back and get a good laugh over our fun times.
