“ Once when we were young, about five or six years old, Ricky told me he was learning to fly. When I told him people couldn't fly he said he would show me he could...he climbed on top of his dad's car flapped his arms... and jumped. Laying flat on his back, laughing uncontrollably, he said, "I just need some practice." Ricky was a gifted musician with a wonderful sense of humor. I loved to hear him play his guitar, and he always made me laugh. He fought many personal battles in his life, but never lost his ability to make me smile. My visits to Alabama will never be the same, you will be missed cousin. Deborah Pace
