You have rocks, legs and wings,
You have streams that lead off the main stream,
that sometimes look much better,
Than others lead to a dead end.
Everyone has worked their course at times,
Some learn from their mistakes; pour the water out and go ahead with a new lesson in life.
Some leave their course at the bottom and walk through dangers and unknown waters,
I myself tried many wrong streams,
that sometimes lead to a dead end.
I have worked my own course many many times,
more than most.
I am old now, I have been hard headed and slow to learn,
I have hurt some people in my life,
Maybe by not knowing or not listening.

We were saddened to learn of Wayne's passing. He always had a friendly word or a friendly wave when we saw him. We both liked him very much and will miss him.*
