“ my great grandmother was patricia kirkland wilks. i never met her 1st husband jimmy, but i did know papa wayne. he was my great grandfather. i never thought of him as a step relative, and to be honest i didn't know he wasn't blood. i remember every friday me and my sister would go to his and meme pats house. he would always be in that plastic white chair in the garage watching tv. i remover the countless times him and i would sit out there watching killer karaoke. he would call me his "little cowgirl" he is the first person i had ever lost. i remember we were in our way to New York for a vacation when my mom got a call. next thing i know we are at their house. my sister and i wait in the car for a while until my dad comes and gets us. we walk in to see my meme crying and the family and preacher in the living room. when i was told that he passed my heart broke. papa wayne i miss you and i still love you

“ As a child my highlight of visiting papa was riding on his big green tractor, and as a dad , taking my boys to visit and them riding on his t tractor like I did. Then I got to be the driver, and be just like my papa! He was such an insperation to us all ad a hard working, Godly man! Rest in peace Papa. I miss you. Little Jerry
